

I frequently speak at schools, libraries and festivals. My most popular talks are described below. I hold a current Working with Children Check and speakers' public liability insurance.

1. MEET THE AUTHOR PRESENTATION: This 45-60 minute presentation explores the nature of creativity and the truth of the storytelling process. I share some of my early live/work before focusing on ZAC & MIA – its real-life backstory, fictional narrative, and its international impact. I conclude by outlining the backstory of HIVE and ROGUE, and how the world-building and narrative evolved from curiosity. This presentation is suitable for students in Years 7 to 12. It is especially relevant for groups studying creative writing, tension, world-building, visual analysis and adaptations from book to screen.

2. HIVE PRESENTATION: This 45-60 minute presentation begins with the backstory of HIVE: how real life stimulus in 2005 triggered 'what if' questions which laid the foundations of the story. I then outline the challenges of world-building in speculative fiction, and how I used problem-solving, research and symbolism to build a plausible city structure and a credible society. Topics of character, pace, language and intertextuality are discussed, including the influence of other fictional texts. This presentation is suitable for students in Years 8 to 12. It is especially relevant for groups studying dystopian narratives, world-building, and/or characterisation.

3. ZAC & MIA PRESENTATION: This 45-60 minute presentation explores the intersection of real-life factors and how they led to the development of the narrative. I discuss how I weaved conflict into story, and manipulated tension in a difficult setting. I explore how themes evolved through the drafting of the story. International book covers are shared for comparison, with a discussion of symbolism, themes and marketing. Finally, I share how the novel was adapted into a Hollywood television series, including changes to structure, setting and characterisation.

4. WRITING WORKSHOP: These workshops can range from one hour to a full day. In these practical sessions, I employ fun and accessible activities which emphasise the idea of 'play'. Using visual stimuli and questions, I lead students through various writing exercises, including: writing from real-life stories; writing from setting; writing character and backstory. Students are encouraged to write reflexively, with honesty and empathy. During these workshops, I explain how similar exercises aided the development of my novels.

5. WRITING CREATIVELY IN EXAM CONDITIONS: In this talk/workshop, I provide practical advice for ATAR students who are anxious about writing under exam conditions. After dispelling myths about creativity, I use a process of questioning to interrogate various visual stimuli and tease out possibilities for story.

I am flexible and able to cater for specific audiences and requirements. Other past topics include:

- Motivational talks (for graduating tertiary students and employees)
- Creativity and wonder (topic of my recent PhD)
- Character development
- WAVELENGTH talk
- SHUTTERSPEED talk
- Writing workshop for adults interested in writing for teenagers

REQUIREMENTS

For talks, a data projector and screen are essential. I can either use my own MacBook and dongle, or will bring my PowerPoints on a USB to use with a school's computer. For workshops, I would appreciate use of a whiteboard. Data projector and screen are preferable, but not essential.
